

National Center on Disability and Journalism

Educating to improve accuracy, fairness and diversity in news reporting

NCDJ's Mentorship Program: Students and newly employed journalists application

Mentoring students and newly employed journalists with disabilities.

CONTACT INFORMATION: Please indicate the best way to contact you.

name:	school/ employer:
permanent address:	title, position or class level:
home phone/fax:	alternate address:
home e-mail:	alternate phone/fax:
identify: gender/ ethnicity/disability	alternate e-mail:

Career Objective (please include medium such as print, radio, TV, etc., as well as type of communications such as news, public relations, etc.) _____

What are you looking for in a mentor? Do you prefer to be matched with a person with the same disability/gender/ethnicity? _____

About the NCDJ Mentorship Program

The goal of the program is to provide examples, advice and encouragement for journalism students and new journalists with disabilities in meeting the challenges of the working world. National in scope, local matches might not be possible.

Participants should be flexible and willing to use multiple forms of communication such as e-mail, Internet, phone, or fax. Questions? Contact us at: voice: 415-291-0868 / fax: 415-291-0869 / e-mail: mentorship@ncdj.org.

Please return to: National Center on Disability and Journalism, 944 Market Street, Suite 829, San Francisco, CA 94102 or by fax to: 415-291-0869

Once your application has been received, NCDJ will contact you. Thank you!